SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 2, 1858. DANIEL BAKER AND J. Q ADAMS.

The following is from the very interesting Biography of the Rev. Daniel Baker, D. D., which William S. & Alfred Martien are about publishing. Dr. Baker was at this time settled in Washington City .-- Presby-

"It was usual for me to write one sermon with care, and commit it to memory for Sabbath morning; for other occasions I had only brief notes, and sometimes no written notes at all; and here I will mention an incident which turned out better than I feared. One Sabbath afternoon, just as I had announced my text, which was this -- Ephraim is a cake not turned'-John Quincy Adams, the Secretary of State, stepped in, and walking up the aisle, took his seat near the pulpit. The reverence which I had for this great man, the singularity of the text, and my want of due preparation, all united to disconcert me; I was thown off my balance, and preached as I then thought, and still think, a very indifferent discourse. It had, however, one excellence, not found in most of my sermons-it was very short; not more than twenty or twenty-five minutes long. When I finished, I was excessively mortified, and thought I should never see the Secretary of State in that church again; but to my astonishment, the next week I was told that he had rented one of the best pews in the church. Whether the exceeding brevity of my sermon pleased him, or the freedom with which I pointed out the inconsistencies of professing Christians, or whether he had previously resolved to take a new at any rate. I know not; but one thing I soon had the pleasure of hearing that Mr. Adams had taken a pew, and that was not all; soon after, the Secretary of State became one of the most efficient trustees of my church, and one of the best friends I ever had. As a proof of this on a certain emergency he loaned the church twelve hundred dollars; and on another occasion, having bought a house for twelve hundred dollars, to be paid in four instalments, I called upon Mr. Adams, at that time President of the United States, and usk- THE RICHEST PHOSPHATIC GUANO ed him to lend me two hundred and fifty dollars, which I promised to pay in a short time. He listened with much interest, inquired all about the matter and, when informed that the gentleman from whom I bought the house, resided in Ohio, he said, 'I think, Mr. Baker, I had better advance the whole amount, and you can pay me.' This was most generous, and most unexpected. I expressed my gratitude, and observed, 'If I pay the full amount down, the gentleman would no doubt allow me some considerable discount.' 'That,' re-plied he, 'will be your advantage.' Thus saying, he took up his pen and gave me a check on the bank for twelve hundred dollars .--This was certainly doing a handsome thing very handsomely; but not more so than another thing a few years after. Wishing to cell my house on going to Savannab, I requested a friend to call upon the President, and ask him if he would not like to purchase it, and if so, what he would give. Mr. Adams told him that he had no particular wish to purchase the house, but he would give me fifteen bundred dollars cash, and be would be willing I should have six mouths to look around and see if I could not do better. This was another noble act. I need scarcely say that I sold the house to him, and was promptly paid. "Mr. Adams never failed to be in his pew on Sabbath afternoon, whatever might be the weather, and was a most attentive nearer. After he took a pew in my church, and became a trustee, it seemed to come more into notice. Mr. Crawford, the Secretary of the Treasury, and Judge Southard, the Secretary of the Navy, each took a new, and so did General Jackson, then a Senator."

Dr. Dixon, in a late number of the Scalpel," in an article on diet, assumes the position that the "use of oil would decrease the victime of consumption nine tenths, and that this is the whole secret of the use of cod liver oil," and quotes the following summary observations this subject, made by Dr. Hooker. Of all persons between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two years, more than one-fifth eat no fat meat.

Of persons at the age of forty-five, all excepting less than one in fifty, babitually use fat meat.

Of persons who, between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two avoid fat meat, a few acquire an appetite for it, and live to a good old age, while the greater portion die with phthisic before thirty five. Of persons dying with phthisic, between the ages of twelve and forty-five, nine-tenths, at least, have never used fat mest.

Most individuals who avoid fat meat, also use little butter or oily gravies: though they should compensate for this want, in part, at least, by free use of those articles, and also milk, eggs and various saccharine substances. But they constitute an imperfect substitute for fat meat, without which sooner or later, the body is almost sure to show the effects of deficient calorification.
